

Part 1 (0:00-6:00)

- 1) How did Hans Rosling test his Swedish students' knowledge about health in the developing world, and what did he discover from the results of the test?
- 2) How did his students describe the "Western World" and "Third World"?
- 3) Globally, how have fertility rates (出生率) and life expectancy (平均余命) changed since 1962?

Part 2 (6:00-12:00)

- 4) Globally, how is wealth distributed among the world's population?
- 5) Regarding the relationship between GDP (国内総生産) and child survival rate, how does looking at individual countries compare to looking at general regions (Sub-Saharan Africa, South Asia, Arab States)?

Part 3 (12:00-17:00)

- 8) According to Rosling, is development easier for a country when it is "healthy first" or "wealthy first"? Why?
- 9) What is the meaning of Rosling's statement that "the improvement of the world must be highly contextualized?"
- 10) Why aren't more people aware of the data that Rosling describes?
